

Five Truths That Will Fundamentally Transform Your Marriage

Though Scripture gives great wisdom about marriage and relationships, our marriages still look very much like the world. This workshop will review some of the essentials about marriage that all of us should know and pass on to others.

Ed Welch holds a PhD in counselling psychology with a neuro-psychology specialty from the University of Utah, as well as an MDiv from Biblical Theological Seminary. Ed has been counselling and teaching at the Christian Counseling & Educational Foundation for over thirty-five years and has written many books and articles on biblical counselling including, When People Are Big and God Is Small, Addictions: A Banquet in the Grave, Depression, Running Scared, Shame, Interrupted, and Side by Side: Walking with Others in Wisdom and Love. He and his wife, Sheri, have two married daughters and eight grandchildren.

I. Love your spouse more than you want to be loved by your spouse. This means that you will learn to say, “Will you forgive me?”

II. Know and respond to your spouse

A. Know what is important (“How are you?”), and respond

B. Know strengths and weaknesses, and enjoy

III. Be known by your spouse – speak about the things on your heart

IV. Take time to pray and read the Word together

V. Love Jesus more than you love your spouse

Suggested Readings:

Marriage Matters, Winston T. Smith