How to Train Evangelists

When Lindsay Brown identified the need to train evangelists, he started the Fellowship of Evangelists in the Universities in Europe (FEUER). In this session, Lindsay will share what inspired the vision of a network of evangelists across the continent. He will also give practical advice and illustrations of how to set up training for evangelists, what is involved in training evangelists, and what evangelists really need to learn in order to be adequately trained.

Lindsay Brown is a native of Wales. He studied European history at Oxford (MA) and theology at the Free Faculty of Theology at Vaux-sur-Seine, near Paris, under Henri Blocher. He has been involved in student ministry with IFES for over 40 years, serving variously as European Regional Secretary, International General Secretary and currently heads up FEUER (Fellowship of Evangelists in the Universities of Europe) a network formed by a joint effort of UCCF, the British student movement and IFES, the international evangelical student body - which has as its aspiration the renewal of public communication of the gospel in the universities of Europe. He recently served as the International Director for the Lausanne Movement for World Evangelization.

- I. The model of public proclamation and its justification in Scripture
- II. Models of how this is carried out across Europe with illustrations
- III. Reflections on the unearthing and training of these evangelists, which includes:
  - i. Discerning biblical imperatives and justification for proclamation evangelism.

ii. The value of working in teams

iii. Preparation and delivery of sample talks in a supportive environment with constructively critical feedback.

iv. Ongoing training sessions with models from Denmark, Romania, and Spain.