

Peer-To-Peer Youth Evangelism

Because they are rooted in the youth context and culture, young people have the very best potential to reach their friends for Christ. In spite of this, often the most they are challenged to do is invite a friend to an evangelistic event. What makes a student effective at peer-to-peer evangelism? How can young people be equipped to reach their friends for Christ?

Maruska Kozlejova is the director of School of Leaders, the discipleship program run by Training Centre Kompas in Slovakia. She received her Master's degree in Literature and Aesthetics, and is working on her PhD in Literature. Her biggest passion is discipleship. She has led six small groups, with a total of 50 people. She is the author of four books, the third of which is focused on how discipleship can work in the Slovak environment.
